Moses Hutzler, the titular founder of Hutzler Brothers Company, earned his living as a merchant during most, if not all, of his life in America. For several years he sold merchandise in and near Frederick, Md. A store on Patrick St. ("opposite Quynn's Hardware") was the apparent base for his business. An advertisement in the local paper March 31, 1846, described the store as "The CHEAPEST and most Fashionable Lece, Fancy, and Domestic Dry Goods Emporium in this or any other city." This store was (later?) shared with Abraham Gold who married his eldest daughter, Barbette.

He returned to Baltimore (1842?) and established a small store in the 100 block of North Eutaw Street. He continued to operate this store until his retirement in 1873 or 1874.

An additional store was purchased by Moses Hutzler early in the spring of 1858. This store stood on the southwest corner of Howard and Clay Streets and was about 20 feet wide by 50 or 60 feet deep. The purchase, from Elkan Bamberger, undoubtedly included the inventory carried by the store, but no record of the transaction remains. It was this store that was the beginning of what is now Hutzler Brothers Company. Abram, the eldest of Moses Hutzler's sons, was the original proprietor.

The store was called M. Hutzler & Son since Abram was, according to family stories, a minor, too young to obtain credit. (He was actually near his 22nd birthday.) Moses Hutzler would have been in a better position to establish credit since he had operated a similar business successfully for years, and this is perhaps the reason why he lent his name to the store. However, he took no part in the operation of the new store beyond the role of advisor.

The first written record of the new store's operation appears (misplaced) in The Sun, April 20, 1858, under "Auction Notices". It describes "edgings and inserts, collars, sleeves, handkerchiefs, kid gloves, and parasols". These items are still carried today, although sleeves hopefully, are no longer separate items.

Only three years after the founding of M. Hutzler & Son, the Civil War began. Maryland, a slave state, did not secede from the Union, but the city was a hotbed of secessionist activity. The roads leading to Baltimore were soon closed and commerce was nearly at a standstill. The federal army arrested and held many prominent Baltimoreans as hostages. Abram Hutzler was forced to flee to Pennsylvania. Some time during this period, Charles and David began working for the store.

After the war the store prospered. During the sixties (1869,) Abram and Charles opened a wholesale business on Baltimore Street, near Hanover, leaving the retail store under the management of their younger brother, David.

At the beginning, David had just one saleslady, "Miss Anna," helping him. Later, many members of the family served the store. Pauline and Sam Gold and their father, Abram Gold were there for many years. Charles Goldsmith managed most of the store and its personnel, and his sisters, Emma and Lena, were also there.

Hennie Spandauer was cashier. Her sister, Blanche, was also a longtime employee. Ella Hutzler served as relief cashier at nights and occasionally in the afternoon. Gus Dettelbach and Dan Lowenthal also served the store.

The "one-price" policy was announced in 1868. This innovation and "Bargain Day" (e.g. every item 25¢) contributed to the rapid growth of the store, and by 1889 the volume of business had grown to such proportions that Abram and Charles closed the wholesale business and returned to help manage the retail store.

The subsequent growth and development of the Hutzler store is described in detail in "Hutzler's A Picture History, 1858-1958". The management of the store has rested entirely in the hands of the original brothers and their descendants from its founding to the present time, with the exception of a few years following the death of David Hutzler (1915), when the presidency was held by Henry Oppenheimer, David's son-in-law.

The founding of the Hutzler store is interrelated with the start of another famous store, Bamberger's, in Newark, New Jersey. When the original Hutzler store was purchased from Elkan Bamberger,* the Bamberger family lived on the second floor of the store building. At that time Louis Bamberger was a child of three.

Many years later (1892) Louis Bamberger and his brother-in-law Louis Frank, were in Newark to liquidate the stock of a large, bankrupt store. They noticed an unusually heavy demand for general merchandise that could not be met by the other existing stores. After the stock was liquidated Louis Bamberger was able to raise the necessary capital to begin a department store on the same site, and thus began the store that carries his name today. The greater part of the money came from Felix Fuld, who with Louis Frank, was a partner in the business.

After the death of Felix Fuld, Louis Bamberger sold Bamberger's and pioneering radio station WOR (which began broadcasting February 22, 1922) to Macy's for fifteen million dollars.

*Elkan Bamberger did not think there was much of a future in retailing in that location. He went into manufacturing with modest success.

MOSES HUTZLER

(See Pages 1 & 2)

Moses Hutzler came to the United States in 1838 (*some papers show that he left Hagenbach in August 1839) with his five children and his second wife, Caroline. The trip aboard the sailing vessel required forty-two days. The weather was stormy and the food poor. During the trip Caroline suffered a miscarriage and was cared for by her elder stepdaughter, Babette, since medical attention was not available.

The Hutzlers had planned to travel to Richmond to join some other Hutzlers, reportedly first cousins, who had emigrated from Hagenbach a few months earlier. Caroline was too weak to travel and therefore the family settled in Baltimore, the destination of the ship, remaining there for several years.

We know only a little of the circumstances that led Moses Hutzler to leave his home in Hagenbach. Reputedly, he left Bavaria after a dispute with a neighbor. They had a common outhouse and divided the manure for use on their farms. Each claimed more than he received and the neighbor sued Moses. Humiliated at having lost the suit, Moses Hutzler decided to take his family on the arduous, long and costly trip to America. Presumably he disposed of most of chattels in order to finance the voyage.

Moses had learned tailoring in the schools of his native city and after arriving in Baltimore, attempted the relatively new avocation of ladies' tailor. Having failed at this in Baltimore, he moved to Frederick, Maryland, and became an "itinerant dry goods merchant", traveling the frontier area between Frederick and Newmarket. He regularly left home on foot early Monday morning, returning on Friday before sunset.

In the early 1840's, Moses moved back to "downtown" Baltimore (where David was born (*in 1843), probably in the Eastern Avenue house, q.v.) and ultimately established a small store ("uptown") on the east side of Eutaw Street between Fayette and Lexington. The Hutzler family lived upstairs over the store. Moses Hutzler tended this store for nearly thirty years. It could easily be declared the original Hutzler store, adding at least ten years to the age of what is now a venerable Maryland institution. This would, however, require historical license.

Little is known of Moses Hutzler and from this we may deduce that he spoke little of himself. No brothers or sisters came to this country with him and perhaps he had none. He was born in Hagenbach, Bavaria on November 28, 1800 and died in Baltimore on January 31, 1889. He "often visited relatives" in Virginia, yet there is no known common ancestor for the Baltimore and Virginia Hutzlers. (* The common ancestor has now been determined)

Moses Hutzler was an ardent fisherman. He was active in many fraternal, philanthropic and community activities. He was a founder of the Har Siani Congregation (1842). The first services of the Congregation were held in his home, a large, old (Circa 1702) house on the northeast corner of Eastern Avenue and Exeter Street. Subsequently many services of the newly founded organization were held in this house until permanent quarters could be obtained.

When first seen by Moses, the house had been vacant for many years and was believed to be haunted. Moses was able to rent it very cheaply since its reputation was widely known. He did not believe in ghosts or the supernatural. Soon after moving in, he found that the spirits were in reality a family living secretly and rentfree in the cellar.

He retired in 1873 or 1874, when he gave up his home over the Eutaw Street store and, (after?) the death of his wife (in 1876), went to live with his daughter, Mrs. Theresa Bamberger.

He was an Honorary Member of the Amicable Lodge #25 A.F. & A. M. Masons. He was known as "Honest Mose" because of his integrity. He was a Republican because of his belief in abolition of slavery.

ABRAM G. HUTZLER - BALTIMOREAN

The tradition of Baltimore is made warm and personal by a thousand memories of well-loved men and women who lived and worked and dreamed in these streets, and helped, in their own time, to build the City into the stately mellow beauty of today.

Among all these names - those which have become overlaid with legend and those which are associated with the deeds which are being done in our midst here and now - none is pronounced with accents of more unfeigned affection than that of Abram G. Hutzler. As we think of him there is mingled with out emotions a happy pride in the possession of a unique personage.

For here, among us, hale, hearty, and brimming with the spirit of a youthfulness which mocks at the calendar, is a man and a friend who speaks to us in the accents, phases and moods of our time about the colorful days of long ago. Nor does he tell the tale as a mere spectator. The events which form the burden of his reminiscences were those in which he bore a man's part; the City which has grown vast and strong in his very sight, owes no small part of its vigor and splendor to his own labors.

It was a Baltimore far other than the one we know into which Abram G. Hutzler entered as a tiny boy when he disembarked from the frail sailing vessel which had carried him across the Atlantic to these shores - a diminutive metropolis viewed from present day standards, with a population less than oneseventh of today's numbers, although it then ranked one of the largest cities in the Union.

Martin Van Buren was then President of the Nation, and the Mexican War was still afar off in the future. The steam railroad was an experiment just beginning to justify the boasts of those who had acclaimed its advent; a decade was to elapse before the electric telegraph would tick off its epochmaking message between Baltimore and Washington; even the forgotten horse car was not to make its appearance on the City streets for years to come. The hoary old "Sunpaper," which today we alternately venerate and execrate, was then a lusty infant in its second summer.

The little boy whose eighty-fifth anniversary is this year a source of so much happiness to us sailed tiny boats in the waters of the Canal, which later so far fell from its high estate as to become sober Canal Street, and still later prosaic Central Avenue. He wandered away from his doorstep to follow the funeral cortege of President William Henry Harrison and was restored to his dwelling place only after the town crier had proclaimed his vagrancy; upon his childish ears fell the mellifluous oratory of Henry Clay, and as he grew to manhood he witnessed the entrance on the Republic's stage of Lincoln and beheld with his own eyes the gathering darkening clouds of civil conflict, and the lightning flash at Pratt Street Bridge which marked the first fury of the titanic storm.

And in the weary days of depression and discouragement which followed that tragic conflict when Baltimore, the metropolis of the South, found the empire of which it had been the proud capital, a desert land of waste and bitter unhappiness, he and his fellowlaborers quietly and patiently, but with unfaltering faith and steadfastness, laid broad the foundations and reared the superstructure of an enterprise which has become something more than a mere mercantile experiment. He and his associates have made it veritably an institution characteristic of the fine traditions of the commercial life of the City in which it grew and flourished.

And so it has happened that a loving identification with the life and growth of the City has occurred in the career of Abram Hutzler. He is a part of Baltimore and Baltimore has become part of him. The City he has helped to shape has moulded him, too.

We see this typical touch of our City's influence in his graciousness and charm. Even more so we see it in his smiling refusal to pay grievous tribute to the ruthless demands of age. The City verges on the celebration of a second Centennial and grows younger and more lovely with the years. It mingles old-world memories and courtesies with enlightenment and tolerance of the twentieth century. And so does this ambassador to us from an earlier day. When we would pause and give to him a meed of thanks for the work he has accomplished, he laughingly waves us aside with the promise

"Grow old along with me,
The best is yet to be."

But you may be sure he will not keep that promise - because he will never grow old!

DAVID HUTZLER

David Hutzler was the youngest member of Moses Hutzler's family and the second child to be born in the United States. He was educated in the Baltimore public schools. While still in his early teens he joined his two brothers in the dry goods store, M. Hutzler & Son, working as a clerk.

In the 1860's the business became a partnership under the name of Hutzler Brothers. The older brothers operated a wholesale department of Baltimore Street, leaving the management of the retail store solely to David. Under his management a policy of fixed prices for merchandise was introduced, which contributed greatly to the rapid growth of the business. This policy was contrary to the prevailing practice of selling goods at lower prices to persistent bargainers. This innovation contributed much to the store's reputation, and by 1889, the volume of business had reached such proportions that the older brothers disposed of the wholesale business and devoted their full efforts to the retail store.

David married Ella Gutman, eldest daughter of another highly successful dry goods merchant whose store was located less than a block away. Their years together are described as entirely harmonious. The only time they were known to disagree openly was on the name to be given their younger son. Ella insisted on naming the baby after her father, Joel Gutman, and David wanted the child to bear his name. The resulting compromise, Joel Gutman David Hutzler, is neither handy nor euphonic, nor can it be improved upon by adding a "Junior" as an apologetic suffix.

David Hutzler often traveled to Europe to purchase goods for the store; laces were his specialty. Immediately after he departed on his first trip in 1882, his wife was injured on the dock and gave birth to a stillborn child.

Their home at 1801 Eutaw Place was large and comfortable. Ella also kept house for "Uncle Abe" from shortly after her marriage until his death in 1927. In later years the entire family would come to an openhouse dinner every Friday night. Family members would complain that the meals were too good and the food too plentiful.

Ella, like her husband, was generally fond of people and particularly of her family. She took a personal interest in each niece, nephew, and later in each grandchild, often crocheting presents for each newborn child.

David was active in many civic and fraternal organizations. It is said that once, after a night at the Harmonie Club, he fell asleep standing up while waiting on a customer.

A handsome man, with a fair complexion and hazel eyes, David was at ease with everyone. It was suggested that he run for Mayor of Baltimore, but he never attempted elective office, although he served on many government panels. A partial list of his activities follows:

Vice President of the Baltimore Board of Trade and Chairman of various committees of the National Board of Trade; Member of the nine-man Charter Commission for the City of Baltimore (see The Sun, March 16, 1912); Commissioner of the World's Fair in Chicago in 1893; member of the California Earthquake Commission.

He worked with Congressman David J. Lewis for the establishment and development of the Parcel Post System. Passage of this law was secured while he was President of the Parcel Post Committee of the National Board of Trade. In 1901 he was a delegate to the Peace Conference between Great Britain and the United States. He also represented Baltimore at a peace conference held in New York in 1907.

He served at various times as a director of the Merchants and Mechanics Bank, the Eutaw Savings Bank, and the Fidelity and Deposit Company.

At Dr William Osler's request, he became treasurer of the Maryland Society for the Relief and Prevention of Tuberculosis. Similarly, he was a member of a special committee of the Tuberculosis Congress, his interest perhaps being deepened by the infection that afflicted his brother, Charles, for most of his adult life.

David Hutzler was a Member of the Board of Har Sinai Temple, President of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum, Director of the Federated Jewish Charities. He was a member of the Arcana Lodge #110, Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, of which he served several terms as Master.

The many organizations of which he was a member include:

Royal Arch Masons Adoniram Chapter #21; the Jewish Historical Society; the Jewish Publication Society; the Red Cross Association of Maryland; the State Aid and Charities of Baltimore; the National Conference of Charities and Corrections; the Suburban Club of Baltimore County; and the City Club of New York.

ELLA JOELINE HUTZLER

75 YEARS

(See Pages 1 & 4)

It is our good fortune that Bertha Kayton, of Baltimore, and Joel Gutman of Merchingen, Germany, married in 1852 and had a daughter, Ella Joeline, born August 28, 1855.

Pictures of her as a baby, show a bigeyed darling with thick, black curly hair. This beautiful hair she has retained, although it is now white.

In former years, Baltimore had hugh granite blocks at each street crossing so one could cross the street when there was a heavy rain, as there was only surface drainage then. While stepping across these stones when five years old, Mama fell and knocked out several teeth.

Her education was of the best, for she was sent to Morrison's Finishing School to learn the three R's, Natural Science and Philosophy. This knowledge helps her today in solving her crossword puzzles.

She has often told us how she enjoyed listening to the higher classes recite instead of studying her own lessons. On one occasion, her classmates allowed her to go all the way home without her hat. She said, "She felt awful to think that she had walked the streets in such an unladylike manner." Perhaps some of her children come by their dreaming honestly!

One of the big events of her life was a trip to Europe in her eighteenth year, and on her return home she made her debut at the Harmony Circle Ball, where she danced for the first time with the Master of Cermony whom she eventually married.

The first house Mama's parents lived in was on Barre Street, near Bond, but they were living on Eutaw Street south of Lexington when Mama was born.

In 1874, their home was on Lombard Street, and there it was that they held the big wedding reception for our parent, after a family dinner at the Concordia Club. The religious ceremony had been performed at Har Sinai Temple on Lexington Street. It snowed so hard that day, February 25, that the women wore boots so as to be able to walk from place to place. Mama and Papa went to Niagara on their bridal trip.

The Lombard Street house had many rooms, three stairways and a very large garden at the back and side. Every Saturday after the family dinner, the children were allowed to play there. The United Railways bought this house and erected a power plant upon the site.

When her parents moved to 1901 Eutaw Place, the Saturday family midday dinnere were changed to Friday night gatherings.

In 1843, David Hutzler, our father, the third son and seventh child of Moses and Caroline Hutzler, was born in Baltimore.

At thirteen he went to work for his brother Abram in the small dry goods store on the corner of Howard and Clay Streets, which in time was to become Hutzler Brothers and later, Hutzler Brothers Co.

Papa and Mama led an ideal life until Paps's death in 1915. They had children every few years for over eighteen years. They are Cora Rosa, wife of Henry Oppenheimer; Theresa Gutman, who married Dr. Jacob H. Hollander, died 1916; Carrie, who died at six; Mabel, whose husband is Dr. S. W. Schaefer, of Colorado Springs; Albert David, who married "My Gretel," Gretchen Hochschild; and Joel Gutman David, who after a first venture is now united to Carolyn Fuld.

There are eleven grandchildren and two greatgrandchildren. The grandchildren are Ella Hutzler Oppenheimer, who married Henry S. Miller, and whose two children, William (Billy) Henry and Ellen, are the greatgrandchildren; Rosamond Hutzler, David Hutzler and Bertha Gurman

Hollander; Caroline, Albert David, Jr., and Richard Hutzler; Julia Hutzler and David Hutzler Schaefer; and Katherine Adele and Betty Rose Hutzler.

Mama has always been fond of music. She began to study piano when quite young and continued taking lessons until she was seventythree. She loves to play duets and only in the last few years has this amusement been supplanted by her two radios and Mah Jongg, at which she says "she always loses." She buys course tickets for all concerts and symphonies and treats the family to the opera season each year.

Mama likes to talk about the many trips she has taken. She has spoken of the time she crossed the Atlantic on the steamer Normandie with two small children, and how she and Papa managed without fresh milk and portable ice boxes. She recalls with amusement that on her first tour west Albert insisted on retracing the route so as to meet Gretchen.

Nothing gives her more pleasure than automobile riding, and she has been over most of Maryland, the United States and Canada in this way. She gets a real thrill from seeing outofstate licenses on the Maryland roads.

Mama keeps open house for her family and friends. The only complaint the Friday night gathering makes is that her meals are too good and plentiful.

Mama was confirmed at thirteen in the first confirmation class of the Baltimore Hebrew Congregation.

She is a "Mother in Israel," for she is devoted to her religion and hates to miss a service in the Temple; nor does she ever forget an anniversary of the death of any of her dear departed.

Father was a board member of Har Sinai Temple and on the Building Committee for the present Temple. At the same time Mother was on the board of the Ladies' Auziliary and an active worker at the big basaar given to raise the funds for the building. The Rabbis are numbered among her closest friends.

Both her father and husband served as president of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum, and it was during these years that Mama was on the board of the Hebrew Ladies Orphan's Aid Society.

Before her son Albert was born, Mama started to crochet lounge covers and since then has made hundreds. Every daughter, son, grandchild, sister, and niece has more than one from her, and all the newborn babies have been kept warm by her handiwork.

Mother had as a member of her household, Uncle Abe Hutzler, who came to live with her just after her marriage to Papa. He remained until 1927, when he died at ninetyone years. Up to then, Mama kept house for him at 1801 Eutaw Place and Pomona.

During the World War, Mama worked for the Red Cross, and a band of women met at her house every week to sew for the soldiers.

One of her most treasured possessions was a filigree chain received by her from her peternal grandmother who got it on her wedding day from her husband. So far, this chain has only been owned by an Ella, for as the first Ella gave it to her namesake, so in turn Mama gave it to her namesake, Ella Oppenheimer.

Mama loves to give presents, and her contributions to charity and other worthy causes have been most liberal.

We are gathered here today to help her celebrate her seventyfifth borthday and to congratulate her upon it. We wish her much good health and happiness now and in the years to come, so that we can all be with her on her hundredth.

JOEL G. D. HUTZLER

Joel Gutman David Hutzler was born two days before Christmas in 1892. He has had to compete with Christmas and the attendant rush every year since, and has done it with the reticence and stoicism that have marked most of his life.

His childhood days were spent pleasantly in residential Baltimore as the youngest member of a family of six.

He remembers how he enjoyed chasing fire engines. One cold, windy day he followed the engines a long way to a huge fire blazing in downtown Baltimore. The fire was very hot and was not nearly under control when he left the scene. It was, in fact, the beginning of the great Baltimore fire.

Morton Newburger remembers visiting his cousin Joel and stalking big game (i.e. Felis domesticus americanus at Canis ordinarius) with a B.B. gun that was hidden away in a hollow post of the main stairway.

Dad had an eye for mischief, fine machinery and later, for attractive girls. People who know him are always impressed with his fantastic powers of observation. He reportedly can hike through a department in the store at a brisk pace without looking left or right and will spot everything and everyone who is in less than optimal posture. He is said to have fine eyes and super-silent, rubber-soled shoes.

College days at Johns Hopkins were quieter than they might have been had illness during the last months of high school not slowed him down. He had been a first-rate basketball player during high school, and won the "Over All" athletic cup in 1911 during his senior Year at Friends School. He received his B.A. from Johns Hopkins in 1915.

World War I found Dad in the Navy attached to a large warehouse in Norfolk, Va. He was a Chief Petty Officer and ran the place with an iron hand. Everyone knew him and sailors jumped into action when they saw him coming.

A notice announcing competitive tests for commissions came to Dad's attention. The day before the test he discovered it would include spherical trigonometry. The entire subject is based on thirteen rules. He learned these the night preceding the test. Dad got one of the two places offered to the 300 applicants. By doing so he became a lowest-ranking student officer among many high-ranking officers, and served out his days at the U. S. Naval Academy, completing the war accelerated course on Feb. 11, 1919, at which time he returned to civilian life.

Many of his stories involve automobiles. He tells of the night he drove his brand new Studebaker downtown to see a movie and returned home some hours later. He was awakened by a call from the police, who had found his car downtown, and were wondering whether he had not driven an identical one home. (The other man's key did not fit the lock on his car, or he might never have noticed the difference.)

I remember the 1929 Cadillac convertible coupe he had bought my mother for an engagement present. It was a beauty. I recall riding to school in it regularly until I was nearly ten years old. I would count passing cars by pulling a certain switch. I wonder what that switch was for!

Dad always had a boat. Until the late 1940's it was the Whoopee, a thirtyone foot motor cruiser which we kept at the Maryland Yacht Club. Seeing the Clipper (the seaplane) come in from Europe was a special treat, and we would cruise near the airport for the event.

For leisure time he enjoyed travel, sports, and nature. I remember the many canoe trips we took on the Rangeley Lakes and their tributary streams. Visits to caves in Virginia and to the mountains were among my favorite memories of growing up.

The gymnasium Dad built on our property in Pikesville was perhaps the biggest failure of anything he planned. Big enough to hold a badminton court and too big for use as a playground, it was finished just before World War II. Wartime restrictions on the use of fuel and a heavy load of war-imposed duties limited its use during the war. By then I was at the right age to gleam maximum use from the gym but was not so inclined; neither was David. Never did a man have two less athletic sons!

The house in Pikesville was a fifteen-room, threefloor stuccoed creation of the age of servants. Every room had an ante-room. A beautifully proportioned living room was its redeeming feature. It offered a great deal of room to play. We had a marvelous electric play piano, one of the finest ever built; that Dad had bought when first married. The piano rolls bear my markings. X's and checks, to denote my favorites, since I played it long before I went to school.

Then too, there was a regulation-sized pool table in the cellar which I have never seen Dad use. Once David, who is a better-than-average pool player, challenged him and was promptly and decisively beaten.

Dad was a hay fever sufferer. I remember the violent sneezes that catapulted the sleeping dog into frenzied retreat with tail-between-legs. Dad could never be talked into taking antihistamines.

He never spoke of his professional life. He was Vice-President of Hutzler Brothers Company and his duties for years involved financial matters, store operation and expansion. He was ex officio planner of the first branch store (Towson) during which time he suffered a steel strike, a showcase strike and a case of shingles. Most planning, alterations and expansion throughout the entire Hutzler operation had his consent, from the 1920's until the late 1950's. His retirement at age sixty-five was followed by part-time involvement in the facets of store operation that attracted his interest or ire. He assumed the Chairmanship of the Board after the death of his brother, Albert in 1965, and holds this position today.

LEWIS HUTZLER

(See Pages 5 & 6)

Copied with some changes from: 1980 issue of Family Tree

Lewis Hutzler was the first child of Isaac Hutzler. He married twice. His first wife was Fanny Wombacher and his second wife was Yetta Oberndorfer. So far as we know, he had five children by his first wife and four by his second wife. There are no dates available to show when Lewis Hutzler, Fanny Wombacher or Yetta Oberndorfer were born.

He and Fanny Wombacher's five children were born from March, 1834 and February 1840. Only two of his children, David and Sallie came to the United States sometime after Abraham Hutzler. David married Elizabeth Brown. They had 13 children. Sallie never married and lived with her uncle, Abraham, and was considered by him and his family as one of the immediate family.

By his second marriage, Lewis had four children. The oldest, Sabina, was the only one who left Bavaria (now Germany) and came to Richmone sometime prior to the Civil War because her half-brother, David, and half sister, Sallie, lived in Richmond. Emanuel Falk was living in Louisiana prior to the Civil War. When his regiment was sent to the defense of Richmond, he met Sabina, married her, and settled in Richmond. They had ten children, but very little is known about them with the exception of Maurice Falk's family.

Emanuel Hutzler, their second child, married Lea Wollner and Feist their third child married Minna Wollner. We believe these two wives were sisters.

In 1895 Moses Hutzler visited Hagenbach and Nurnberg. From his letters home we have learned something of Emanuel and Feist and their families. Excerpts from his letters relating to them are as follows:

"Ludwig and Marx (Feist's sons) and Ludwig and Isaac (Emanuel's sons) have called several times; they are nice boys and not only their parents but also their aunts Sallie and Mary can well be proud of them."

"In my last letter wrote you that we contemplated going to Hagenbach on Sunday. On yesterday morning when we arose it was cloudy and the weather threatening. Our little band of tourists hesitated making the trip but seeing my anxiety decided to make the venture. Our party consisted of Uncle David, Lena, Max and his betrothed, Meta (Fannie's daughter), Ludwig, Marx (a brother of the betrothed) and myself. We left Nurnberg at 5:15 A.M. and arrived at Hagenbach about 8 o'clock A.M. Before leaving Nurnberg it began to drizzle and ere we reached Pretzfeld it was pouring. The hotel keepers and livery men had evidently forgotten to send their teams down to the station to haul the distinguished arrivals so we had to foot it in a derching rain from Pretzfeld to Hagenbach. Emanuel, Feist and all their sons were at the depot to meet us. Despite the bad and disappointing weather our crowd was jolly and our entertainment and enjoyment was also a great success. Our first halt was made at Emanuel's, his wife had prepared a breakfast of which all ate heartily; after resting for a short while we then went to Feist's but returned again to Emanuel's in time for dinner. Seeing no prospect for better weather we sent word to Lavino that we could not go to Wambach and return in time to catch the train and that she and her husband should come to Hagenbach. About three o'clock she, her husband and youngest son arrived and remained with us until train time. I forgot to mention that Therese (Lavino's eldest daughter who by-the-way is a very pretty girl) was at Emanuel's when we got there."

"Between 3 & 4 o'clock we again returned to Feist's where an 'afternoon tea' had been prepared for us. We left Hagenbach about 6 P.M. and arrived again at Nurnberg at 9 P.M. I made several calls during the day but a pouring-down rain prevented me from seeing Hagenbach according to my desires and wishes. Aside from that I can say that the trip was not only enjoyable from the standpoint of affectionate interests but was satisfactory beyond every expectation."

"We left here (for Hagenbach) on Tuesday morning and returned Thursday night. Tuesday was spent at Feist's; Wednesday with Lavino and Thursday with Emanuel. It rained the greater portion of the time and we were again prevented from visiting some points of interest to me; however I saw all that had an affectionate interest for me and to give you some idea of how I feel on the subject (without commenting at length) I have decided to go to Hagenbach again in two weeks from now. Emanuel, Feist, Lavino and their families are untiring in their devotion and attention. We were sumptuously banqueted and feasted and in evidence shall relate one of the amusing incidents of our trip. The morning of our arrival at Hagenbach the trio weighed and before leaving weighed again. Fannie had gained five pounds, Meta three, and I had gained the same as Fannie. We were so much amused at the fact that if there is any truth in the old adage 'laugh and grow fat' we surely added a few more pounds. Charley's suggestion 'insure your stomach' as truly a timely warning"

FANNY HUTZLER

(See Pages 6 & 7)

Copied with some changes from 1980 issue of Family Tree

Fanny Hutzler was born in Hagenbach, Bavaria January 3, 1809 and died December 15, 1888. She married Moses Mitteldorfer who was also born in Hagenbach on November 18, 1813 and died October 17, 1873. There is no record of when they came to Richmond, but minutes of an organization of German Jews known as "Chebrah Ahabat Yesrael" held in Richmond on January 28, 1841 shows Moses Mitteldorfer as being present at a meeting which the members expressed a wish to establish a Synagog for German Israelites. He worked on a committee to obtain members for the new Synagog and naturally solicited his family because the names of Abraham Hutzler and Moritz Hutzler appear on the list of those members he solicited. The Synagog later changed its name to Beth Ahabah. He was the sixth president of Beth Ahabah and served as such during the Civil War. The Richmond city directory of 1852 shows Moses Mitteldorfer as a dry goods merchant at the northeast corner of Broad and Third Streets. Fanny and Moses Mitteldorfer had seven children.

Marx, their third child, died in Richmond in 1898. His obituary which appeared in the local paper tells us a little about his life.

"Mr. Marx Mitteldorfer, one of Richmond's best known business men, died suddenly at his home, No. 1229 Floyd Avenue, at 12:10 o'clock this morning. (July 31, 1898)

"Though taken sick over a month ago, the end was quite sudden, being due to apoplexy. From all appearances he seemed to be improving rapidly until the silent hour of midnight, almost without warning, brought the Reaper, and another of Richmond's honored citizens crossed the river.

"Since the close of the war Mr. Mitteldorfer had been engaged in business as a decorator, and some of the most elaborate work ever seen in this city was done by him, or under his direction, notably at the reunion of Confederate Veterans in 1896. One of the last great contracts which he executed was the decoration of the Auditorium at Atlanta, in which the veterans convened at the reunion this month.

"His service in the bloody civil strife will last until memory fades in the graves of his comrades in arms. He enlisted at the first call, and was one of the gallant members of the famous Fayette Artillery. He served until Appomattox, and then after looking about for an opening, he began the business as a decorator which he continued up to his death.

"The art of beautifying, in Mr. Mitteldorfer's hands, was indeed, an art and his taste and skill became more than locally famous. At every occasion of prominence, both civic and military, in Richmond and vicinity, Mr. Mitteldorfer's services have been called into play, and his efforts have often been the most prominent of the enjoyable features of such instances.

"He was married in 1866 to Miss Hannah Wasserman, and the union has yielded five children, Messrs. Leroy and Moses Mitteldorfer, who have efficiently upheld their father's hand at his chosen profession and are now engaged in the decorating establishment, and Misses Rosalie and Minnie Mitteldorfer.

"He was a brother of Messrs. Charles, David and Ellis Mitteldorfer, well known citizens of Richmond, and of Mrs. Jonas Marcuse, and Mrs. Julius Straus, also of this City.

"He represented the live interest in numerous social organizations among them the Jerrerson Club.

"To his excellence as a citizen was in him added a spirit of charity which endeared him to all and his benevolence was of the kind that his right hand bestowed in secret from his left."

Charles Mitteldorfer served with Company F, 31st Virginia Infantry during the Civil War. He was at Harper's Ferry when John Brown was captured and later his company was at Charlestown at the execution. Not too much is known of the business career of either Charles, David, or Ellis Mitteldorfer.

ABRAHAM AND YETTA HUTZLER

(See Page 8)

Copied with some changes from 1980 issue of Family Tree

Abraham Hutzler was born in Hagenbach, Bavaria on November 19, 1811. Yetta Millhiser was born in Hagenbach, Bavaria on January 4, 1814. Little information is known of their life in Bavaria (now Germany), but because of the restrictions which the government imposed on marriage of Jews, then emigrated to the United States in 1838. At that time, only one male in a Jewish family was permitted to marry, and as Lewis Hutzler, Abraham's oldest brother had already married, by law, Abraham was not permitted to marry. The story is that they were married before they left Bavaria, but it had to be kept a secret and could not be recorded in the official records. Upon arriving in the United States, they came directly to Richmond, Virginia, and the records show that they were married by the rabbi of the local synagogue. They had nine children, all born in Richmond. They lived their entire adult life in Richmond within fifty yards of their original home. On August 20, 1852 Abraham purchased real estate on the north side of Broad Street between 3rd and 4th Streets. There was a two story building on the property. The family lived on the second floor and they used the first floor to operate a dry goods retail store. Abraham quickly adapted to life in Richmond, On April 13, 1844, he declared his intention of becoming a citizen, and on April 13, 1852 he did become a citizen. During the Civil War he was a member of the "home guard" and his home was one of many where servicemen would congregate for a little relaxation or get a little home cooking. Throughout his life in Richmond, he participated in community as well as religious activities. He was one of the earlier members of Beth Ahabah Temple. Yetta Hutzler died September 29, 1888 and Abraham died May 15, 1889.

An article written after Abraham's death states as follows: "he is well remembered for his firmness of conviction, his piety, his unswerving honesty and reliability, and the faithfulness with which he clung to his friends. Declining to speculate, and refusing to enter into contracts which might have yielded large profits while the struggle for independence was raging, the end of the Civil War found him with diminished means; and he was not able to give to his younger sons the liberal education which he had intended to insure them". (Vol. 5 Men of Mark in Virginia. (1909)).

Abraham and Yetta were survived by Rosena Hutzler Levy, Robinette Hutzler, Moses Hutzler, Charles Hutzler, Isaac Hutzler and Emanuel Hutzler. They had three other children who predeceased them. Lewis Hutzler died in infancy, Amelia Hutzler died in 1859 at age eight and one half years and Mena Hutzler married David Mitteldorfer and died in 1876 at age twenty five and one half years. Abraham and Yetta raised a devoted family. Their children were most attentive to them as well as to their siblings and also to their cousin Sally, as evidenced by many letters which have survived the years. Cousin Sally was the daughter (the fourth child) of Lewis Hutzler, Abraham's oldest brother. She lived with Abraham as part of his family until his death and after his death she made her home with his surviving children until her death in 1911. She was buried in the family cemetery plot where Abraham, Yetta, Moses, Isaac and Robey or Robinette are interred. There is no record of where Lewis and Amelia are buried.

Their oldest daughter, ROSENA, married Leopold Levy of Amelia Counthouse in 1857. He, along with his two brothers, enlisted in the Confederate Army and served with distinction, taking part in the battle of Manassas, Williamsburg, Winchester, and other notable engagements. He was a special courier for General Stuart and during the battle of Williamsburg carried dispatches from General Stuart to President Davis.

At the end of the war in 1865, he moved to Richmond and commenced his business career by dealing in government supplies. Later he went into the retail grocery business and then branched off into commission business, which proved very successful.

His obituary in the Richmond Dispatch, November 16, 1897 reads in part as follows:

"He held a high place in business circles in Richmond, was for twenty-five years a member of the Chamber of Commerce, and was one of the first members of the Grain and Cotton Exchange and Tobacco Exchange. For the past ten years he had been one of the directors of the First National Bank of this city.

"Personally, the deceased was of a most lovable disposition, and was a man of broad, charitable views. He was the soul of commercial honor, and his word was considered as good as his bond.

"Mr. Levy was quiet and unostentatious in his daily walks, loyal in every relation of life, and lived up to every obligation of citizenship. He was devout in his faith, and illustrated constantly, by act and word, that he loved his fellow man. His benevolent face was a true index to his heart."

ROBINETTE HUTZLER, or ROBY, as she was known, was born August 12, 1842, and died December 26, 1918. She never married and lived with her parents and brothers and sisters on Broad Street over the store known as "A. Hutzler". Little is known of her early years, but we know that she had a congenital hop condition which affected her walking. It can be assumed that she helped out in her father's store when she could and after his death she helped in her brothers' store. She always made her home with her family and relied on them to take care of her. She was short in stature and in later years was plump. She was devoted to her brothers and sisters and to their children. She is buried in Hebrew Cemetery with her parents.

MOSES HUTZLER, was born August 8, 1845 never married. He also lived with his parents and after their death with his brothers and sister. He also helped out in his father's store and it is assumed that he had a formal education, at least through high school. There is no record of his early life in Richmond. The only record we have consists of the letters which he wrote home when he made the "Grand Tour" of Europe in 1894-95. He faithfully wrote his family at least twice a week and his letters were preserved for later generations. All but one of his letters were received and saved. The one missing letter was lost at sea when the ship on which it was sent sank.

In 1877 he and his brothers, Isaac and Charles opened a dry goods store on the opposite side of Broad Street from their home and former store operated by their father. It was a family business and run by the three brothers as equal partners. In his letters which he wrote home from Europe, he was constantly asking about business and made many purchases for the store while abroad. He was reputed to be very much a 'ladies man' and was very popular at dances and social affairs. He was active in civic and religious activities in Richmond throughout his life. He died July 15, 1909 and is buried in the family plot with his parents and most of his family.

There is practically no information on AMELIA HUTZLER. She was born October 15, 1847 and died on May 4, 1859, a little over five months before her thirteenth birthday. We do not know the cause of her death or what kind of a child she was during her short lifetime.

ISAAC HUTZLER was born February 9, 1954. He never married and so far as is known spent his entire life in Richmond. He worked at the store with his brothers and shared with them in their success and failures in business. He was an astute business man and a careful and successful investor for both himself and his younger brother, Emanuel. He was a short stocky man and lived with his siblings on Broad Street in his earlier years and with his brother Emanuel and his sister Roby in his later years on Monument Avenue. He died on August 4, 1921 and was buried in the family plot.

CHARLES HUTZLER was born on October 26, 1849. "As he was eleven years old when Virginia seceded, and fifteen when Richmond surrendered, the stirring scenes of the period of the Civil war were witnessed by him at a time of life when they were most indelibly impressed upon a retentive mind. Marching with the soldiers, taking part in their discussions, often carrying to them food and dainties from a generous and sympathetic home, identifying himself with them even to the extent of carrying his father's musket when the home guard was ordered to the front at the time of Dahlgren's raid, the boy's character was formed, developed and schooled under conditions which rendered his convictions decided, firm, and perhaps somewhat inflexible."

"Through the influence of an older sister of fine taste and sound judgment, he had been led to the systematic improvement of his mind by courses of reading. Beginning with the subject of history, he read rapidly but thoroughly the leading works upon American and modern European history, as well as books upon ancient and Biblical history. After completing this historical course, he took up English literature, devoting much time to the works of Addison, Macaulay, Carlyle and Shakespeare. With the English and American novelists who were most read in the last third of the last century, as well as with the poetry of Pope and Byron, he became very familiar."

"At the age of eight he attended a parochial school. In early boyhood he attended the night school of Major S. T. Pendleton; and later he took private lessons in French, German and Hebrew, meanwhile reading omnivorously. It should be an encouragement to young men who educate themselves outside the schools, to know that Mr. Hutzler has found that with the foundation laid down in the course thus described, he has not been afraid throughout his life to undertake the reading of anything that was ever written; nor has he felt himself in danger of suffering either mentally or morally by dangerous doctrines of skeptic or libertine. Through all these years, he never began to read a fresh volume, without first writing out his opinion of the book last read, and comparing it as to style and contents, with other books which he had read. Of the writings which have left their most lasting impression upon his character, he names the Bible, the works of Shakespeare, Macaulay and Bulwer" (These paragraphs taken from Men of Mark in Virginia (1909)).

At the age of sixteen, he began his business career. As his father was in the dry goods business, it was natural for him to migrate to that occupation. For the next forty to fifty years he was engaged in merchandising. He served as confidential clerk for his employers for the first seven years of his business life and then as sales clerk for the next couple of years. In 1887 he opened a dry goods and notion store in partnership with his brothers, Moses and Isaac under the name of "A HUTZLER'S SONS". It occupied a store on the south side of Broad Street, across from the family home. He sent out notices to all his former customers asking them to patronize this new enterprise. We know from letters which Moses wrote to the family from Europe in 1895 that he was making purchases for the store whenever possible. From these accounts and other records, it was obvious that the store was a success.

Having served as a director of three different banks, he thought that banking was a coming business so he started the Central National Bank and became its president. He served as such until his death. As varied as his business life was, so were the many civic and communal activities in which he participated. He served as public director and president of the prison association for over ten years, as a member and chairman of the school board for the same period of time and as president of Congregation Beth Ahabah all at the same time. At one time he was either librarian, treasurer or president of the Jefferson Literary Society, which he helped to organize in 1867. During the reconstruction period he served as judge of elections, a job which required the courage of conviction on the part of one who dared to accept the office.

When he became president of the prison association in 1911, he was aware that things were not being run according to the rules and regulations, so he requested that an independent group investigate the operations of the prison association. In 1912 as chairman of the school board, he had a similar investigation of the school system. A transcript of each of these investigations are in the archives of the Virginia State Library and make most interesting reading.

Although his formal education was limited, he was able to educate himself far beyond that of the times. Charles Hutzler was always available for advice when asked. His knowledge of business, and human nature far exceeded the average man. His ability to handle business problems, figures and people never ceased to amaze those with whom he came in contact. This is proven by the many letters which his family received after his death. They came from judges, clerks of court, business men, associates in various fields of business, both retail and banking associates, as well as those who were engaged in other endeavors, including his employees and former employees and just ordinary individuals who had either worked for or with him or just knew him. The general tenor of these letters was that not only would the writer consider that he or she had lost a friend, but the entire community and state would suffer a great loss.

His letters, papers and other writings which survive never cease to amaze those who read them. His letter to his son when he entered the University of Virginia as well as the letter to him on his twenty-first birthday were letters which anyone would have been proud to receive. On his seventeenth birthday, he did not want a party to celebrate, but instead he wrote a note to each of his brothers, sisters, cousins, nieces and nephews, enclosing either a five dollar or a two-and-one-half dollar gold piece as a present from him to celebrate the occasion. He truly believed that it was more blessed to give than to receive.

On October 26, 1875 he married Jeanette Millhiser. They had six children, but only one, Alvin B. Hutzler, lived to maturity. Jeanette was not a robust woman and for the last twenty years of her life she was in poor health. She died on October 13, 1910 and Charles Hutzler died on December 6, 1919.

EMANUEL HUTZLER the youngest of Abraham and Yetta's nine children, was born February 2, 1856. He married Henrietta Schwartz who was born June 6, 1860. They were not married very long as she died on January 14, 1889, during childbirth. The child did not survive. Manny, as he was known, spent his early business life as a traveling salesman. He traveled throughout the south and southwestern part of Virginia going as far west as Roanoke, which was then known as 'Big Lick', driving a buckboard or wagon, selling Jeans to retailers. It is assumed that he lived with his brothers and sister when he was in Richmond. In 1914, he purchased a lot on the 2000 block of Monument Avenue and built a three story home on it. Both Isaac and Robinette (Roby) lived with him. Roby was his housekeeper until her death in 1918. As both Isaac and Roby were short in stature with very short legs, and Roby had a bad hip, the steps in the Monument Avenue house were built double depth and with half-risers so that they could more easily navigate the climb to the second floor. Manny was a relatively tall man for his time, about six feet tall. After Roby died in 1918, they hired a housekeeper, but in February 1920, he asked his niece, Marion Levy Rosendorf, who was the youngest daughter of his oldest sister, Rosena Levy, if she would act as his housekeeper and move her family into his home. She accepted and lived with him until his death on January 14, 1939, which occurred exactly fifty years after the death of his wife, Henrietta. In return for Marion acting as his housekeeper, he left his house and furnishings to upon his death.

NOTE: On reading many family papers which I found, the one thing which amazed me more than anything else was the closeness of all of Abraham's and Yetta's children. In all of their letters, they always mentioned each of their brothers and sisters by name and always wanted to be remembered to each of them when they were out of Richmond. Their devotion to each other and the continued consideration for each other never ceases to amaze me. The least that one can say of them is that all nine of them were a FAMILY. This does not mean that any one of them neglected their individual family, but their constant concern for each other and for each one's well-being is a feeling which one does not see in these modern times.

MORITZ HUTZLER

Copied with some changes from 1980 issue of Family Tree

Moritz Hutzler probably came to Richmond in 1838 or 1839, the same time as his brother, Abraham. His marriage to Sarah Manheimer took place in Richmond shortly after Abraham married Yetta Millhiser in 1839. He was one of the early members of Beth Ahabah and was active in the Jewish life of Richmond. He died in 1866 and is buried in the Hebrew Cemetery in Richmond together with his son, John. They are the only two graves in that section. There is no record of where his wife, Sarah, is buried. It is assumed that she remarried after Moritz' death in 1866 and is buried with her second husband. They had three sons and three daughters. The three daughters married three Hirsch brothers from Atlanta, Georgia.

The following information is quoted from "As but a Day", published by "The Temple" in Atlanta, Georgia, (1967).

"The Hirsch family was another whose members laid the foundations of the city and of the congregation. There were three brothers, Henry, Morris and Joseph, who married three sisters - Rosalie, Amelia and Rebecca Hutzler respectively. The brothers came from Gimbshheim, Germany; their wives, from Richmond, Va. Although only two of the brothers belonged to the congregation in 1869, all three of them played important roles in its development.

"Henry Hirsch was born in 1838 and came to America as a boy. At the age of sixteen he was already settled in Philadelphia. A few years later he moved to Marietta, Ga., where his uncle lived.* During the Civil War he fought with the Confederate forces in Richmond and there met his wife. They settled in Atlanta after the war, producing a large and distinguished family. Their youngest son was Harold Hirsch, the renowned attorney and philanthropist for whom the University of Georgia Law School building is named. He played a major role in the construction of the present temple.

"The second Hirsch brother, Morris, was only thirteen years old when he set sail for America with a bottle of wine as his sole possession. Legend has it that he sold this for a dollar which mysteriously disappeared by the time he landed in New York.

"Morris went to live with his brother Henry in Philadelphia, but soon became disillusioned with his life there as a peddler and moved on. First he went to Burlington, Ia., where he got a job in a clothing store. Within a few years he decided to go into business for himself and persuaded his employer to back him. At this point he came south, joining his brother Henry in Marietta. In the meantime the war began, so he enlisted in the Confederate Army. Afterwards Morris came back to Georgia, settled in Atlanta, and finally managed, with his brothers, to open the clothing store that he had dreamed of for so long.

"Morris Hirsch joined the congregation a few years after its inception and was particularly active after he retired from business in the 1890's. He served as treasurer for six years, holding that position at the time of his death in 1906.

"Joseph Hirsch, the youngest of the three brothers, was the most active in service to his city and his faith. He came to America in 1860, at the age of fifteen. Like his brothers, he spent some time in Philadelphia and Marietta before settling in Atlanta in 1867 and going into business with them. In 1897 he retired, devoted himself to civic and religious affairs, and headed the congregation from 1899 until he died in 1919.

"He also served The Temple in other capacities, beginning as secretary when he was only thirteen-two years old and it was only eight. Totalled, his years on The Temple Board amounted to a quarter-century.

"Throughout this time Joseph Hirsch worked diligently for other Jewish causes, particularly the Hebrew Orphans Home, and also in city government. As a very young man he had been a Volunteer Fireman. He later became a Councilman, Alderman, and Mayor pro-tem (1896). He led in the establishment of a city hospital."

*The uncle, also named Henry Hirsch, had come south with his wife and the Kerman Haas family in 1849. The two women were sisters. This elder Henry Hirsch had no children.

David Hutzler was born in 1816, died in 1897, married Rosalie Hoffmann. They had six children, all of whom remained in Germany. Moses Hutzler visited them in 1895 and from his letters home we have some idea of their life in Nurnberg. The following are excerpts from his letters:

"In statue he (Uncle David) is small. He dresses exceedingly neat, wears a standing collar and derby hat; wears his hair short (cut with clippers) and his beard and moustache is cut (or rather worn) in the latest fashion. He appreciates and enjoys the society of his friends and acquaintances and in turn is endowed with social and intellectual qualities which eminently fits him for the position of the head of the family.

"He resides in a large and comfortable apartment house four stories high. On the first floor Matilda and Isaac Reis and their 12 year old son reside. On the second floor Uncle David and his two sons, Marx* and Ludwig reside. On the third floor Isaac and Lina and their two children, Martha 7, and Robert 4, reside. On the fourth floor Lena Kohn, the widow, and her four children, Paula 8, Eustin (Justin) 7, Fritz 6, and Rosa 4, reside. Fanny W - ner and her family live about one block away."

Isaac and Max (who married Martha Marx August 4, 1895) were in the wholesale dry good business (as was Moses and his brothers). Ludwig was in the cattle business and before his retirement his father was also in the cattle business,

"The entire family continue to shower attentions upon me. So much so that I must be very careful in my expressions lest I shall add another obligation to the many already incurred. Uncle David is energetic, bright and intelligent; is capable of entertaining and finds pleasure in the vocation. I need not express a wish nor a desire; - he seems to anticipate my wants and takes pleasure in gratifying them. He accompanies me on my long marches and shows wonderful powers of endurance. His children say that since my arrival he is a changed man and claim that my visit has added youth and vigor to their dear old father and when I speak of leaving enter that as a plea and add many other protests why I should not leave. Marx expect to be married on August 4th; in fact, that day has been selected and uncle says that under no circumstances nor conditions will he permit me to leave until after the marriage. My second visit to Hagenbach was a genuine treat and in many respects equally as enjoyable as the first one.

"This reminds me that on yesterday I took dinner with Fannie and in order that you may judge of my abilities while acting in the capacity of invited guest I shall give you the menu provided I can remember it. Noodle soup, roast veal, asparagus, potato salad, lettuce, roast goose, compot, noodle-charlotte, ices, small cakes, coffee, Rhine wine, beer and champagne - but to this I must add in justice to the others who have entertained me that this dinner was in no respect superior to the meals prepared by the other sisters."

"The long-looked-for happy event is over and peace and quiet once more reigns in the Hutzler family.

"Martha and Max were married on Sunday 4th inst. at 1 P.M. The marriage ceremony, dinner, supper and dancing took place at Hotel Adler. The crowd was small, but select, and all present seemed to enjoy themselves hugely. Dinner lasted from 2 til 7 P.M. Between each course their was either a recitation, reading or telegrams or song. Fortunately I had a good appetite and being in good trim ventured a free indulgence of the same in all the goodies prepared for the occasion; I am also pleased to report that no bad results have followed. Many new and novel features were introduced which contributed in a large measure to the enjoyment of the guests. I shall not attempt a description today as I haven't time at my disposal; - suffice it to say that it was a brilliant affair from beginning to ending. Had some of our honefolls been present I might then be able to add that my enjoyment was complete. However, I have no reason to complain."

*In his letters when referring to Max sometimes referred to him as Max and sometimes Marx which became quite confusing because he also referred to the Martha Marx family before Max's wedding by their last name. Words in () parenthesis are added for clarity.

ROSALIE HUTZLER

Copied with some changes from 1980 issue of Family Tree

Rosalie Hutzler came to Richmond in 1846. Lewis Held, with his younger brother, Charles, left Bavaria and migrated to Richmond. Lewis and Rosalie were married in October, 1846 by Rev. Michelbacher. It was the first marriage to be recorded by him at Temple Beth Ahabah. He was one of the founding subscribers to the fund for the new Temple at 11th and Marshall Streets in Richmond, Virginia. The city directory in 1852 listed him as a dry goods merchant doing business on the west side of Sixth Street between Broad and Marshall Streets. He enlisted in Company A, 1st Battalion, 1st Regiment of the Virginia Reserve on May 28, 1862 for the defense of Richmond.

Their eldest child, AMELIA, married Gerson Heller in 1868. He owned a shoe store in Richmond, but later moved his family to Raleigh, North Carolina.

Their second child, MATILDA, married Joseph Dallman, who with his younger brother, Selig, had been sent from Germany (Bavaria) in about 1870 by their mother to avoid serving in the military. They moved to California, settling in Lincoln which is in the foot hills of the Sacramento Valley. However, they kept in touch with their Richmond relatives. FANNY HELD, Matilda's youngest sister, left Richmond when she was 18 years old to visit Matilda and Joseph in California. She came west on one of the first railroad trains to cross the continent. Selig had seen Fanny's photograph which she had sent her sister and fallen in love with her picture. This information had been communicated to Fanny's mother without Fanny's knowledge, so when Fanny went to California to visit her sister, her mother also packed a wedding gown for her. When the two met it was truly a great love match and they were married shortly after her arrival. According to her family, Selig adored Fanny and was a loving husband until her death. After her children were grown, but before any of them were married, Fanny moved to San Francisco as Lincoln was a small primitive town at that time and she missed the cultural advantages of a big city. Even after the great San Francisco earthquake, Fanny was happy to live in San Francisco because of the cultural activities there as compared to Lincoln. She always referred to Lincoln as a desolate farm land. Both Joseph Dallman and Matilda are buried in the Hebrew Cemetery in Richmond, Virginia.

Rosalie and Lewis' third child, ISAAC HELD, was Deputy Treasurer of the City of Richmond having earlier traveled to California to visit his sisters there, but returned to Richmond to make it his home. He served his Temple faithfully in many capacities and for over 30 years as its Secretary. He acted as Secretary-Recorder-Treasurer for many fraternal organizations and was popular and beloved by a cross section of the entire City.

The third child of Joel Sr. and first son, Joel was born into a family who had, since 1858, operated a successful department store in Baltimore. A thin child, small for his age, he went to an unusually large number of schools, where he failed to distinguish himself except for the ability to get grades of A or F. Never a B or C. Like his younger brother David he had a fondness for gadgets and electronics. He was also fond of model railroad trains, old cars and collected streetcar transfers. Joel eventually grew to full size, graduated from Baltimore City College (an old and famous high school) and Rollins College. He attended graduate school at the University of Maryland.

During 1952 to 1954 Joel was in the U.S. Army and served in the 625th Field Artillery Battalion in Korea without any citations for conspicuous bravery or cowardliness. He was trained to calculate 105 mm howitzer gun settings, a job done by computer today, but served most of his time during the war as a radar repairman. After the cease fire he headed the "Troop Information and Education" section of the battalion; basically heading a staff of up to seven teachers. There were other small duties: publicity MCO, battalion movie projectionist, and battalion historian.

After college, and a period of illness, he took a "temporary" position with the Graduate School of New York University School of Medicine where he did research on the biochemistry of several inborn diseases of metabolism, primarily diseases of amino acid metabolism. About 40 publications resulted over a period of 27 years. Most of these were published in conjunction with Dr. Joseph Dancis, his boss, who remains at NYU, as Chairman of the Department of Pediatrics.

In the autumn of 1965, after the birth of his first child, Joel became interested in genealogy. At family gatherings his relatives tended to be conservative, educated, neatly dressed people who descended en masse and were introduced in such a way their relationship could never be understood or retained. If A is B's sister, how can A be a first cousin twice removed when B is a second cousin once removed? It was enough to befuddle a crowded, but logical, mind.

There had been a tradition in the family of presenting a personalized family genealogy to family members on their 75th birthdays. Without much effort, Joel produced one for his father's 75th birthday on December 23, 1967, by relying on the collected works of others and the Varsity in the NYU print shop, supplemented by a small donation to the print shop Christmas fund.

As a result of that project, Joel was introduced to the most distant relatives he had ever known, his sixth, seventh and/or eighth cousins (read the book to find out), the Charles S. Hutzler family of Richmond, VA. At Charles's request, Joel collected genealogical data from the descendants of the Baltimore Moses Hutzler family; about 350 persons plus their spouses.

Retired, at the moment, Joel has devoted much of his time to paper work -- this genealogy and some estate work. Like his brother, David, he has a sloop, a computer, two sons, a house in the suburbs, and a long-term marriage. Hopefully, some inventions and grandchildren will follow this period of paperwork.

DAVID ARNOLD HUTZLER Page 25. By Joel Gutman David Hutzler, Jr., April 19, 1989

Born November 1, 1936, in Baltimore, MD, David was not only the youngest of Joel Hutzler's four children but also the youngest child of the youngest child of three generations. He is 39 years younger than the oldest of his first cousins and 65 years younger than the oldest second cousin for whom we have a birth record on the Hutzler side of the family.

Always a gadgeteer, David enjoyed working with his hands more than he enjoyed doing academic work. A report card from The Park School survives today saying, " -- David has wasted the whole term working in the (school woodworking) shop (instead of doing his academic studies)." A similar report was issued to Thomas Edison's parents by a different school. David eventually graduated from Avon Old Farms (high school).

As were several of us, David was an heir apparent to the Hutzler department store dynasty. After completing all his electronics engineering requirements at Virginia Polytechnic (he never completed an English requirement and consequently never graduated), he was invited to join the Hutzler store by his father. At 22, it was the first time a store career had been suggested to him. Now it was too late.

A job at Bendix designing microwave circuits ended less than a year after he joined the firm, due to massive layoffs, and David found himself not only unemployed, but competing in a job market with hundreds of newly dismissed engineers. Finding a "sales engineer" job (i.e. selling graphic recorders) for the interim period till a career-type job came along, he was almost desperate enough to take the Hutzler's Executive Training Course, when one day the phone rang and a total stranger offered him a job "transistorizing LORAN". This was the end of the vacuum tube era.

David understood that LOPAN was an electronic navigation instrument used primarily by off-shore ships. He knew little more about it, but was anxious to learn. The offer was from ENAC (later ENAC-Triton), headed by one of the most creative engineers in the business.

Ultimately, David's boss died when he flew his private plane into a mountainside, and the business fell into less friendly hands. David left the firm and designed his own LORAN with the intention of developing a clearly superior instrument. He succeeded!

During the next 20 years the marine LOPAN industry grew explosively and David prospered. In 1986, the last LORAN was manufactured by NELCO. Many/most LOPANs are now manufactured in Japan and other parts of the Orient. David then devoted his time to his investments: his 35 foot sloop and his airplane. In 1986 he succeeded in selling the estate his parents had moved into in 1933, and was still occupied by his mother, who loves the place dearly.

David served as a director of the Hutzler store from May 1974, the time his father resigned, until 1988, shortly after Jerome Schottenstein purchased controlling interest in the store.

ALVIN BRYANT HUTZLER. Page 51. By Charles S. Hutzler

Alvin Bryant Hutzler was born December 19, 1887. He was the fifth of six children born to Charles and Jeanette Millhiser Hutzler and their only child to reach maturity. Their first child, Joseph, lived less than seven months. Abraham, the second child, lived almost eight years and died of a ruptured appendix in October 1887. Louise was the next child and lived only a little over nine months. The next child died in infancy and was never named as was the sixth child. Alvin was born less than three months after the death of Abraham.

As I understand it, Alvin was a sickly child and his mother rarely permitted him the freedom which other children had. After having lost her other five children, this is easy to understand and the fact that he was pampered and spoiled by both his parents seems natural to us. Although he was not an only child, he was certainly treated as such, and in fact he was an only child while growing up. It appears that he was not only spoiled by his parents, but he was also spoiled by his many uncles, aunts and cousin. He had an unmarried aunt, two unmarried uncles as well as an unmarried cousin who helped in this.

Although he was spoiled by all the adults around him, he certainly was not a backward child. I have a letter which he wrote his Aunt Robie and Cousin Sally* in August 1891, when he was less than four years old. He was spending the summer with his mother at Sweet Chalybeate Springs in the mountains of Virginia. The letter was written cursive and not printed and it was a quite intelligent letter. Many people who have seen the letter doubt that he wrote it, but comparison with his handwriting of other letters he wrote many years later leaves no doubt as to the authenticity of this letter. Alvin was devoted to both his parent as well as to all his uncles, aunts and cousins as divulged by the many letters he wrote while at college, on vacations and on trips. His education included a college degree and a law degree which he received at the University of Virginia in 1908 & 1909.

On February 21, 1910 he married Constance A. Mayer of Philadelphia. They had three children; Louise, born February 2, 1911, Charles, born July 14, 1912 and Constance (Bunny), born August 1, 1918. Alvin's mother was unable to attend his wedding because her health would not permit her to travel. She died in October 1910. Alvin's father, Charles did attend the wedding and his letters to his wife telling her of all the parties and prenuptial events as well as the wedding itself permitted her to enjoy the event as if she had been present. After his honeymoon, he returned to Richmond and began his practice of law with Harold Bloomberg. They remained partners until about 1916 when he went into the practice of law as a sole practitioner. He had no other partners but when his son Charles graduated from the University of Virginia in 1938 he joined his father as an associate.

Alvin was very active in many phases of civic and community life. He and his wife participated in the Little Theatre League in Richmond. He was an active Mason, master of his Lodge and was a 33rd degree Mason before he was 35. He was a charter member of the Richmond Rotary Club, a board member of the Jefferson Club, the Central National Bank, Temple Beth Anabab and helped to found the Citizen's Service Exchange during the depression, which later became Richmond Goodwill Industries. He considered as one of his most important contributions to his legal profession that of being a founding member of the group of lawyers who organized the Lawyers Title Insurance Corporation, one of the first, if not the first title companies which guaranteed the title of a piece of property and not the property itself. He died on October 6, 1941, after a six month illness.

Alvin was a collector. He collected postage stamps as a child and he continued this hobby through his adult life. He also collected books, mostly on Virginia, but he also collected first editions of Tennyson and Dickens as well as other first editions. In 1930, while in Maine, he accompanied his wife on "antiqueing expeditions". On one of these trips, he acquired a small blown bottle which he liked. On returning to his summer home, he studied this type of bottle and soon became an amateur expert on American blown glass, which he continued to collect until his death.

* Sally was the 4th child of Lewis and Fanny Wombacher Hutzler. Lewis was the eldest child of Isaac and Mindel Hutzler and he was the older brother of Abraham Hutzler. We do not know how she came to the United States, but we do know that she lived with Abraham and Yetta Hutzler and was considered as one of their family. She was two years older than their eldest child, Rosena. After the death of Abraham and Yetta, she lived with his children until her death in 1911. She was buried in Abraham's family plot in the cemetery.

CONSTANCE MAYER HUTZLER. Page 51. By Constance Hutzler Simon

Constance Agnes Mayer was born in Cincinnati, Ohio on August 4, 1887. Her parents and their six weeks old daughter, Madeleine, had moved there from Atlanta, Georgia only one and a half years after Solomon Charles Mayer had married Nellie Hornstein of New York. The Mayers were a prominent Jewish family in Atlanta where David Mayer (Solomon Charles' father) had served as supply officer on the staff of Gov. Joseph Brown during the Civil War. He was a member of the school board for twenty years, having served on the board from its inception.

Sol, Nellie and their three children, Madeleine, Constance and David lived in Cincinnati until Constance graduated from High School. She was an active young woman who loved to debate and be independent. She was an excellent artist and had her drawings published in the paper as a young child, but above all, she wanted to write. She taught Sabbath School at the Settlement House and travelled to visit relatives in Ohio, Georgia and New York. Her grandmother taught her fine needlework and I have many examples of her petit point and embroidery. She visited the World's Fair in 1893 and also in 1938. She met Amy Bloomberg (Ezekiel) her senior year in High School and it was through their friendship she was to meet Alvin B. Hutzler, her future husband. After High School she studied costume design for one year at the Art Academy. In 1906 the family moved to Philadelphia so she could study at the Academy of Art there. While visiting Amy in Richmond, she met Alvin at a party. He was in a very bad mood over something and she wanted nothing to do with him. P.S. They were married on February 21, 1910 in Philadelphia.

They lived at 325-27 E. Franklin Street in Richmond, in the home of Charles and Jeanette Hutzler, Alvin's mother and father, until they moved to 4104 Hermitage Road in 1912. She gave community service through Traveler's Aid and other community organizations, ran a household and was hostess for her husband and friends. They both participated in the Richmond Little Theater.

When Alvin died on October 5, 1941, she found herself without her main purpose in life. She grieved deeply and never got over his loss. But she took a new lease on life and did what she had always wanted to do and had the ability to do . . . write. For many years she and her husband had collected antiques. Their home was furnished with the many beautiful pieces they had gathered in their travels in Canada and up and down the Eastern seaboard. They had read and studied and gone to seminars. She was mostly interested in English china, early American pattern glass and American furniture. Her friend, Douglas Southall Freeman, who was editor of the Richmond News Leader and head of radio station WRNL at the time, asked her if she would like to do a series of broadcasts on antiques.

Thus was born "The Antique Lady". I have the recordings of these broadcasts which took place over a number of years in the 40's and 50's. She continued to travel, study and collect antiques until she died. She had access to many private homes and museums because of her broadcasts and gave programs for organizations and other interested groups. She also wrote a book on English china and her experiences collecting. It was never published. I have the draft of this also. She died on July 3, 1959.

LOUISE HUTZLER FIVEL. Page 51. An autobiography

Jeanette Louise Hutzler was born February 2, 1911 to Constance and Alvin B. Hutzler in Richmond, Virginia. She was educated in Richmond public schools and attended The Misses Kirk's School in Rosemont, PA for one year before attending Goucher College. She graduated from Goucher in 1933 with a B. A. in chemistry. During World War II she taught chemistry at the Medical College of Virginia (now a part of Virginia Commonwealth University) in Richmond. She was active in the Richmond Section, National Council of Jewish Women and League of Women Voters, as well as the Richmond Women's Golf Association. In 1947 (May 11th) she married Harry E. Fivel of Norfolk, Va. They had two children, Julia Ann, born June 7, 1949 and William David, born July 23, 1950. Harry Fivel died November 29, 1983. Louise continues to live in Norfolk.

CONSTANCE (BUNNY) HUTZLER SIMON. Page 51. An autobiography

I was born on August 1, 1918 when it was 108 degrees in the shade. I weighed five pounds and had what was called a "club" foot. I was called "Bunny" by a man in Pinehurst, North Carolina because when he asked me my name, I answered "I'm a little white bunny rabbit with pink ears and green eyes and I live in Richmond, B'dinia". The name stuck, and I was only called Constance when mother was angry with me.

I went to The Collegiate School for Girls and graduated in 1935 at which time I won the Rosemary Medal for Leadership. I also took dancing from the Tray-Boy Studio from the time I was seven and specialized in acrobatics. Dramatics was my speciality and I was in many plays and Collegiate and also in the Richmond Drama Guild.

During the summers of 1927-1934 I went to Tripp Lake Camp in Poland, Maine. I loved all sports but especially diving. I was a Captain in '34 and won cups in diving, tennis for form and best all-around.

I went to Mt. Holyoke College in So. Hadley MA and graduated in 1939 with a B.A. in English Lit. and Drama. I won the Genevieve Schmich award for Drama and was President of the Dramatic Club, Vice-Pres. of the class and senior member of the Judicial Board. As an Alumna I have been President of the class since 1969.

The summer of 1938 I was an apprentice with the Garrick Players in Kennebunkport, Maine. I learned how to make sets and run a switchboard aside from a few walk-on parts. The summer of 1939 I was with Daykarhanovas School for the Stage in Mt. Kisco, NY, connected to the Westchester Playhouse. In the fall I went to New York City and studied at this school. The next year I studied with Andreus Jelinsky. Both of these Russians were from the Moscow Art Theater. We gave many productions which would be considered 'off Broadway' today.

I met S. Budd Simon in the summer of 1940. We were married on January 17, 1942, - the first week-end we could get the Rabbi after Pearl Harbor. We didn't marry earlier as my father was ill and died on October 5, 1941. Three weeks after our wedding, Budd was in the army and on his way to Basic Training in Augusta, GA and I followed. He developed an eye ulcer at the time that he was accepted at OCS at Camp Lee, VA and ended up in the hospital instead. After he was released from Walter Reed Hospital he went back to OCS and was sent from there to Middletown Air Service Command in PA in limited service. On Nov. 30, 1943, John Bryant Simon was born. When Budd was discharged from the Army in 1944, he went to work for Sam Chase, a builder, in Scarsdale, NY. Patricia Jo Simon was born June 29, 1946. We moved to Pleasantville, NY September 1946 and have lived here ever since.

Budd and I were founders of Temple Beth El in Chappaqua New York and both served on the Board. I was also President of Sisterhood in 1952 and Interfaith Chairman of Dist. 3 NPTS for several years. We were both active in Scouting. Besides being a Troop Leader,

I trained leaders for twelve years. I also have been a nurses aide at Northern Westchester Hospital and Westchester County Medical center for over twenty five years.

Dramatics was never too far from my life. I was in local productions of "Our Town" and "The Little Foxes" with the Pleasantville Players, and "The Shadow Box" with the Chap-pacus Drama Group. Also had fun in Temple Reviews.

The activity we loved most was volunteering as a host family for the Experiment in International Living. Our first student came to us in the summer of 1961 from France. Now in 1989 his son is a student at Cornell. We have had students from around the world and have been fortunate enough to visit many of them - from Europe, Africa and Japan.

John Simon graduated from Hamilton College in 1965, after spending his Junior year in Paris. He did graduate study at Cambridge (Caius Coll) and York England. He founded The Dome School in New York City; A school for youngsters who were having trouble in the public schools, and was its director until he moved to Finland with his family in 1984.

Fat Simon graduated from Mt. Holyoke College in 1968, having spent her Junior year in Paris. She won a scholarship to study abroad and after spending a year in Germany she went to Interpreter School in Paris. She married Wolfrarr Krieger and she and her family live in Munich Germany where she is a Psychologist in private practice.

Budd Simon died November 17, 1974. I am still in Pleasantville and active in volunteer and local affairs.

CHARLES S. HUTZLER. Page 51. An autobiography

I was born July 14, 1912 in Henrico County, now Richmond, VA. I was the second of three children born to Alvin B. & Constance M. Hutzler. I attended the Richmond public schools and three years at a preparatory school in Maryland. In the fall of 1932 I entered the University of Virginia. My father, who had attended The University in the 1909 ear told me that I should "have some fun while in college" and I took him at his word and did just that. Then I finished college it was in the midst of the depression - no jobs - no future, so I applied to Law School and was accepted, not because of my good grades, but because Law School did not have sufficient applications to fill the classes. It was when I entered Virginia Law School that I realized that "all play and no work" did not help to make me a success, so I applied myself to my books and graduated with my class in June 1938.

During my seven years at Virginia, I had roomed with Edward Hirschler of Norfolk, VA, and upon graduation we both joined my father in his law practice in Richmond. Upon leaving law school, both Ed and I realized that we would soon be at war, so we signed up to take by mail a course in the Army Reserves and received our commissions as 2nd Lieutenants. True enough, war did come along, and in 1941 Ed was called to active duty. My father died October of that year and in the spring of 1942 I was called to active duty. I closed a law office that had been operating since 1909 and was off to defend my country. As it was, I went to Fort Monroe, VA and remained there two years; then was transferred to Baltimore and stayed there eight weeks and was again transferred - this time to Fort Meade, Maryland where I was to remain for the duration of the war. Thus I fought "The Battle of the East Coast" for over four years and was discharged at Fort Meade in June 1946 as a Major.

In 1939 I married Betty Gunst and we have two children, Alvin B. Hutzler, II, born February 15, 1942, and Gale Sophie Hutzler, born May 10, 1944. We have three grandchildren.

Upon returning to Richmond after the war, I again began the practice of law. I did not go with as established firm, but went the way of a 'sole practitioner' and have continued as such with the exception of about ten years when I did practice with a partnership. During that period and until the present time, I was active in civic and communal affairs including serving on the Board of Directors of many varied organizations including Richmond Goodwill Industries; Traveler's Aid Society of Virginia, and am a past president; Jefferson-Lakeside Country Club, and am a past President; Lakeside Park (the holding company for the club), and am a past president; Hebrew Cemetery Company; Beth Abrahah Museum and Archives Trust; Richmond Rotary Club, and am a past president; Virginia Chapter of National Council of Christians & Jews; Hebrew Fund as well as the various Bar Associations.

I enjoy collecting antiques, stamps, coins, playing golf (badly) and working on the family tree. Other than those hobbies, I take life easy and enjoy being with my family.

BETTY GUNST HUTZLER, Page 51. By Charles S. Hutzler (I asked her to write this but she refused, so I am writing a thumb-nail sketch of her)

HELEN BETTY GUNST, as she was named, was born May 30, 1917 to Henry and Helen Galeski Gunst in Richmond, Virginia. She attended the Richmond Public Schools and then went to a local college, The Richmond Branch of William & Mary, which is now a part of Virginia Commonwealth University. She graduated with her B.S. degree. On December 23, 1939 she changed her name to Betty Gunst Hutzler and has put up with me (her husband) for forth-nine and a half years. As stated above, she and I have 2 children and 3 grandchildren. She enjoys playing all kinds of card games, collecting antiques, being with her friends and watching over her husband and family.

ALVIN B. HUTZLER, II graduated from East Carolina University and worked as a teenager and during the summers for his Grandfather, Henry Gunst, who was a wholesale distributor. He now is President and owner of the company. He married Joanne Lumpkin in 1982 and they have two children, Pamela and Charles Joseph.

GALE HUTZLER HARGROVES graduated from East Carolina University, married James Roberts and was a school teacher for five years until her son, James Roberts, Jr., was born in 1971. After her divorce she returned to Richmond and later married James E. Hargroves, Jr.

JOHN ULLMAN. Page 66. By Noel Dudley.

John Ullman is the youngest of the five children of Leo and Blanche Ullman. He is Seventeen years younger than his oldest brother Emanuel. His father owned a grocery store in Richmond, Virginia and dealt in banking and real estate. John was an outstanding student finishing near the top of his class in high school and one year was recognized as the outstanding student by the Beth Ahabah Sunday School. He was attending the University of Chicago when World War II started. John considered a major in meteorology which would have provided him access to a non combat position, however, he graduated in three years with a major in chemistry. He went through a 90 day Officer Candidate program and was assigned as an engineering officer on destroyers that escorted convoys in the Caribbean. He served on the USS Barney, DD 149, a world war one vintage destroyer and later on the USS Stickle, DD 888, a new construction ship built in Texas. John was involved in one night of combat action during his only convoy escort duty to Europe.

After the war John earned a Master Degree from MIT in Chemical Engineering and went to work for DuPont in Martinsville, VA, where he worked as an engineer in the manufacturing of nylon yarns for 37 years. His work lead to his being awarded three patents.

While attending a wedding party in Richmond, VA which was being held by his sister, Amelia, a blind date with Anita Salzberg was arranged by Sara Markham. Anita was in Richmond visiting her brother Arnold who was an intern at the Medical College of Virginia. After a courtship which included trips to Richmond, Lynchburg, New York City, and Virginia Beach, John and Anita were married. Some time later John gave up his interest in the private plane which he had used to travel to some of his dates with Anita.

John and Anita had three daughters, Barbara, Sara and Harriet. They were active in the small Jewish community. He was President of the local pool club while his children grew up. John and Anita traveled extensively including Europe, Russia, China, South America, and Scandinavia. In October 1987, Anita became ill and died that December of a cancerous brain tumor.

Barbara was the eldest of John and Anita Ullman's daughters. She was raised in Martinsville, VA. Barbara graduated with a degree in political science from Cedar Crest College, where her mother had graduated. She completed training as a para-legal at Adelphi University and married Noel Dudley, whom she had met at Lehigh University. They lived in Charleston, SC for four years where her husband was in the navy, and she worked at the local news paper. Their first daughter, Amelia, was born in Charleston and was named for Amelia Ullman, who had died of cancer.

Barbara moved to Idaho Falls, Idaho, where her husband worked with EG+G in the nuclear field. Her second daughter, Elizabeth, was born there. Barbara certified as an ASPO/lamaze instructor and developed prenatal exercise programs for the YMCA. Due to the educational system and the lack of a Jewish community Barbara and her family moved to King of Prussia Pennsylvania.

REMINISCENCES ON THE HUTZLER EXTENDED-FAMILY. Page 62. By Walter Hanau

My comments must be confined to personal memories and feelings; I can't add to the scholarly genealogical work that has been done.

First, my personal history, and that of my immediate "branch" of the Family Tree. My parents were Justin and Rose (Roel) Hanau (geb. Hutzler). My father was a branch manager at a major bank - later, after 1933, working in a low-profile inside function. Our existence, like that of most Nurnberg Jews, was comfortable; but fortunately, as it turned out, my father tended to be a pessimist, bending every effort from about 1935 to effect our emigration. We (my parents and I, an only child) succeeded in emigrating to New York in 1937, when I was 14½. My father became an insurance broker, working in this line until 1969; he died in 1970 at age 81, my mother in 1977, also aged 81 years.

A generation further back: My grandfather Max Hutzler, so far as I know was born in the "Family Cradle", Hagenbach; but his part of the family must have moved to Nurnberg some time before the 1895 visit of Moses Hutzler of the Richmond family. Max and his brothers were apparently in business together. Judging by the house which my grandmother owned until Nazi expropriation, and the apartment-house-full of Hutzlers (Pezoldstrasse) they must have done well; but I have a vague recollection that the business suffered badly during the post-war inflation climaxing in 1923 (hearsay, as I was only born in 1922). My grandfather Max died in 1926 at age 70; my vague (I was 3½) recollection is of a jolly, kind gentleman. His widow and my mother's only brother managed to emigrate via England to the U.S. and lived out their lives here, my grandmother until 1949, my uncle, David Hutzler (he never married) until 1961.

Much of this is information contained in the genealogical tables; but I was struck by the fact that tragedy is sometimes hidden in the facts of these tables. In particular, this was brought home to me by the notation: "Lina Hutzlerm. Joseph Kohn, /1854 to 1891/ 4 children ..." I remember "Tante Lina" well from my childhood visits to the Pezoldstrasse house, as well as her brother Ludwig, who remained a lifelong bachelor in order (at least so I was told) to help her in bringing up those 4 orphaned children. One of these, Justin Kohn, told us reminiscences of his childhood; "Uncle Justin" spoke of a time when Jewish and non-Jewish Nurnberg children formed close friendships (in the era of Good Feeling of the late 19th Century, the time of the newly formed German Empire); another indication of a good life style at that time.

This brings me to my deepest personal reaction concerning the genealogy data - something akin to finding myself in a time travel story. Long ago I came across Moses Hutzler's travel letters of 1985, typewriter-transcribed in the 1957 Edition of the Hutzler genealogy. It affected me deeply, because of the references to my grandfather Max, including descriptions of my grandparents' betrothal and then their wedding - again a sense of an extended family in comfortable circumstances, but people who managed to preserve a family orientation in their celebrations - something which is too often lost in the Catered Affairs of our own time. Copies of the transcribed letters, and in particular a copy of the handwritten letter describing the wedding, are among the treasured mementos of our own genealogical collection. "Uncle Moe" (I feel I may call him that, having visited his grave in Richmond after the 1984 Hutzler exhibit at Richmond's Temple Beth Anabab Museum) had a way of bringing the subjects of his letters to life!

As a child I had never seen Hagenbach; but I heard it mentioned occasionally, and our curiosity was aroused by learning of the role of "The Hegenbachers" in Richmond, so during a 1986 visit we set out to see Grandfather's birthplace. We had almost expected to share the experience of a Hutzler Cousin by marriage, the late Martin Gold; he told of Adelsdorf, which all his family's accounts described as a "Kaff" (extremely small community), but on his visit, he found it had grown to a large modern town with high-rise buildings. Not so with Hagenbach, which had remained very small; in nearby Nurnberg, no one knew of it and we could not find it as a telephone exchange. The search of our friend living in Nurnberg had finally placed it for us near the moderate-sized town of Forchheim, in a pretty, hilly region. Unfortunately, our schedule required delivering our newly-bought car the next day for shipment, which left only Pfingst-Montag (the 50th day after Easter, celebrated there as both a religious and official holiday) for our visit. Leaving the northbound autobahn, we encountered unexpectedly heavy Forchheim traffic, then quiet country roads into the hill country. We had lunch in the inn of a picturesque old village about 5 miles from our goal; even this close, we found only one person who could give directions. Only 1 Kilometer before Hagenbach, we found the first and only road sign to it, at Pretzfeld (interesting name, in view of the intimate association between the Hutzler and Pretzfelder families in past generations). We crossed a bridge over a small river into Hagenbach; a sleepy level road forking into roads affording occasional glimpses of the pretty hills known presumptuously as part of "Fran-conian Switzerland"; neat buildings, mostly one-family houses, all quiet for the holiday. The only business house we found was a carpeting sales outlet. Only the local inn was open. After a thoughtful walk through the village, we were on our way north to Frankfurt.

Regretfully, we only read later of the presence of a Jewish cemetery in Hagenbach; maybe there will be a future visit in which to find Hutzler graves there.

There is one more personal reaction to report, and it is a very painful one. Last Summer, a "Golden Reunion" of Jewish survivors from Nurnberg and Furth (so designated because for most of us it has been about 50 years since we escaped Nazism) took place in the Catskills of Upstate New York. During the quiet wind-down days after the main program a conference room remained open, which had been organized as a display of many documents regarding the life of the area's Jews before Hitler, during the persecutions and emigration, our life here in the U.S.A., and of course the Holocaust. In the quiet of these wind-down days, we came across the following record - And while the horrible statistics of millions of Holocaust victims are all too familiar, there is something even more terrible in these personal data, about people including those from our families; some that I remember from my childhood. Here are excerpts, translated where necessary:

Index of Jews deported from Nurnberg. The persons marked with x were saved. (Use of the word "saved" indicates to me that this is a record of relief organizations or a post-war government, not of the Nazis).

A. Transport of 29.Nov.1941 to Jungfernhof near Riga. (3rd page) No's 176-182 Hutzler: Emma; Fritz Fredy; Ignatz*; Klothilde; Sara; Theodor; Therese*. (6th page) No's 368-374 Reis: Erna*; Hedwig; Jenny; Ludwig*; Margot*; Nelly*; Rosa. (Note Ludwig and Nelly, and daughters Erna and Margot, were Hutzler cousins living in the Pretzoldstrasse house.)

Transport of 25.Mar.1942 to Izbica, District Lublin. (3rd page) No's 154-155 Hutzler Mali; Sigmund (*faintly). Notation "none saved" following this list.

D. Transport of 10.Sep.1942 to Theresienstadt. (5th page) No. 188 Ida Hutzler. No's 353-354 Pretzfelder: Gustav; Hannover (note; I didn't know these two, but the Pretzfelder family of Furth was intimately connected to Hutzlers by numerous marriages.)

There were pitifully few of those x's (for "saved") in any of the lists, and none alongside the family-sounding names I have reported above.

*denotes those whom I remember from my childhood. I have dim but nonetheless loving memories from early childhood.

This is a sad note on which to end a family reminiscence; it is only mitigated by the reflection that the Hutzler Family Tree shows us the names of the youngest generation, continuing our families.

The letters on the next 3 pages show the transition of ownership of the HUTZLER STORE in Baltimore in the first decade of the 20th Century and were furnished by William Miller, whose family appears on Page 21.

1907-1910, a transition period for Hutzler Bros. Co.

Surviving letters between David Butzler and his son-in-law, Henry Oppenheimer from the 1906-07 period provide insights into the relationships between David, his brothers Charles and Abram and E.O. and the effects of these relations on Butzler Bros. Co. E.O. had retired from his own business, a clothing manufactory, to live in Germany. David wrote that E.O. would be needed in the business. His offer of $4000 per annum plus a 5% interest in the business is reproduced below. Brother Charles was dying of tuberculosis. In fact he was to die less than a month (on April 17) after David made his offer.

The offer was accepted in 1907 and by the agreement of Sept. 15, 1910 (also reproduced below) between David, Abram and E.O., Abram was forced to sell 10% of the capital stock to both Albert D. and to E.O. to bring them equal to Brother Charles's sons E.B. and L.S. These four controlled 40% of the capital stock at that time. E.O. served as President and General Manager of the company from 1915-19. He was a founder of the Retail Merchants Association in 1917, which is commemorated by a bronze plaque in possession of the Maryland Historical Society.

The Butzler enterprises produced little of more than local or temporary significance in spite of undeniable commercial success. Some surviving architectural gems may prove to be the exceptions. Far-flung members of the Butzlers' families who visit Baltimore might be interested in some of the surviving artifacts of that earlier era. The Palace building on Howard Street is well known. David Butzler's house at 1801 Eutaw place was one of the finest town houses in Baltimore. Each room was paneled with a different wood. I believe the library was cherry. The shell of the building survives today and is worth seeing. E.O.'s Uncle Ike Strouse (ne Strauss) who founded a clothing manufacturing business in 1867, Strouse & Brothers, erected one of the finest buildings of its type still standing, an example of Richardsonian architecture with high arches and fine detailed ornamental brickwork. It is well preserved today at the same location at Paca and Lombard Streets. I recommend a tour of the area including the the Old Sonneborn Bldg. that housed L. Greif in the same block as the Strouse Bldg. The letterheads of Strouse & Bros. (depicting the building) and an early one of Butzler Bros. are reproduced below as interesting in their own right.

Office of HUTZLER BROTHERS CO.

Baltimore, Sept. 15, 1910

To A. C. HUTZLER, Esq., Vice-President:

At your request, I briefly state below the main points expressed in our conversation of yesterday, and the action desired of you:

- A - To sign contract to dispose to Albert D. Hutzler the same amount of stock of this Company which E. B. and L. S. Hutzler now own; this to be effective from January 1, 1911, at the rate of 2 per cent. per year, for 5 years, or until Albert D. Hutzler has 10 per cent. of the capital stock.
- B - To sell to Henry Oppenheimer an amount of the stock of this Company equal to that now held by E. B. and L. S. Hutzler, extending over a period of 5 years.
- C - The remainder to be retained by you so that you will remain a director of this Company the balance of your life, and the writer will always welcome your advice and wisdom, but when a difference of opinion arises between the Vice-President and the President, the President's decision must prevail.

It is my desire to restore this business to its former prestige and power, to increase the revenues, and expect to that end only constructive, conscientious work, and cannot permit of anything obstructive to its betterment.

Should you agree to these requests, which is merely to comply with the original plan as arranged by myself, you will be giving your best assistance to continue a business that we, as brothers, would be commended upon by the Father who is gone.

David Hutzler

President.

LEOPOLD LEVY Page 8 By Aldine Rosendorf West

Born in Bavaria on May 6, 1828, Leopold Levy emigrated to the United States in 1848, settling in Amelia County, Virginia. Details of his life prior to the Civil War are sketchy though it is known that he operated a store in Amelia Court House. He married Rosena Hutzler in 1859. He was a member of the Amelia County Troop, a cavalry company, which had been organized in 1846. In 1859 the troop offered its services to Virginia's governor at the time of John Brown's raid on Harper's Ferry. The governor, however, did not call up the company which was fortunate for Levy, who could not have accompanied it being ill with typhoid fever.

With the coming of the war, Virginia mobilized her men. Captain Samuel S. Weisiger called the Amelia Dragoons into camp at Amelia Court House. The camp was located about three hundred yards from Levy's home, but he was kept in camp like everyone else even though his only son, Joseph, was quite ill and his wife fearful that the baby might die. The men spent their time drilling and sharpening their swords. On May 9, the company was enlisted at the Court House before starting for Richmond. The Dragoons passed through the Confederate capital and encamped at Ashland, where they remained for about six weeks.

Levy and the rest of the Amelia Troop had their first experience at war near Berryville, Virginia. Several of the men came close to being captured but managed to escape. A few days later, on July 10, 1861, the troop became Company "G" of the 1st Virginia Cavalry. Almost immediately, Stuart, now their colonel commanding, had them out screening the movement of Joe Johnston's army. The 1st Battle of Manassas followed. Levy served as a special courier for Stuart during the engagement. After the battle came months of picket duty. Levy wrote letters home from Falls Church, Munson's Hill, and Centerville, but never received a furlough to go home himself until March 1862. The furlough was in actuality a business trip. Levy, with the rank of acting sergeant, and Lieutenant William Wilson journeyed to Amelia County on recruiting duty. The leave proved of short duration, and soon he was back with his regiment. Levy's wife visited her husband sometime in April. During her visit she met Captain L. T. Brien, soon to become the 1st Virginia's lieutenant colonel.

By this time Levy had actually become a member of the cavalry's Commissary Department. On February 1, he had been assigned to Major Dabney Ball. His work for the major did not relieve him of other duties. At the Battle of Williamsburg on May 4-5 he again carried messages for Stuart. Over the next few weeks, the Confederate Army under Johnston was forced back to the outskirts of Richmond. In June, Stuart made his famous circuit of McClellan's army, but Levy had to be left behind due to his having contracted bilious fever.

Passing through the 2nd Manassas, Sharpsburg, and Fredericksburg Campaigns, Levy continued his work in the Commissary Department. Major Ball had resigned, and Levy was now serving under Major William J. Johnson. In the third week of April, 1863, Levy received a pass which allowed him to return home and collect supplies for the use of the cavalry. He was enjoying his leave when on May 1 he received orders to report back to headquarters as the enemy had taken the offensive. He set out to rejoin the cavalry. Crossing the James River somewhere between Columbia to the west and Goodland to the east, he arrived in the vicinity of Yanceyville on May 3. Here his luck ran out.

A Union cavalry raid under the direction of Major General George Stoneman had slipped around the Confederate Army's left flank and headed south. The raiders had swept through Louisa Court House and pushed on toward Yanceyville. Levy, heading north, ran into them. He, along with his traveling companion, John T. Southall of Company "G", 1st Virginia, were captured. Also made a prisoner in the same area was Major Johnson. Levy was now to enter upon his greatest trial of the war.

Not wanting to carry all the prisoners with them, the Federals paroled some. Levy was among this number. Unfortunately, before he was able to leave for home to await exchange, the Yanks changed their mind and decided to take all the prisoners along for a ride. Placing Levy on a horse without a saddle or bridle, he was kept on the march for four days until he fainted from the fatigue and physical strain. He was a large man, weighing close to two hundred pounds. Unable to hold up his weight with stirrups, Levy could not support himself. What resulted was the destruction of the valves in the veins of his legs. He would never recover from the damage his four day ride caused him. Ill, he reached Old Capitol Prison in Washington, where he was paroled a second time and sent south.

Arriving in Richmond, he was admitted to General Hospital No. 9. He was later transferred to Chimborazo Hospital No. 2, where his condition was diagnosed as varicose veins. Though he made repeated efforts to return to duty, he was unable to ride or walk for very long periods. Finally, in the spring of 1864, he was allowed to return home. For the remainder of his life, Levy would have to bandage his legs from the ankles to above the knees in order to be able to walk. During the last year of the war, he ran his store and cared for the families of his comrades in his old company. When the enemy broke through Lee's lines at Petersburg in April, 1865, Amelia Court House stood in the path of the retreating Confederates heading west and the pursuing Federals under Grant. Though his store was looted, Levy was not disturbed, but between the Yankees and the debts owed to him by his neighbors, he was ruined and penniless at war's end.

Undaunted, Levy moved to Richmond and began anew. At first he dealt in government supplies but later entered the retail grocery business. Success in these ventures led him into the commission business for which he displayed great talent. He recouped his fortune and became an influential businessman. For twenty-five years he was a member of the Chamber of Commerce, and for ten years one of the directors of the First National Bank. He was also one of the first members of the Grain and Cotton Exchange and the Tobacco Exchange. Active in the Confederate Veteran's organization, Levy became one of the earliest members of the Lee Camp, No. 1, as well as a director in the Veteran Cavalry Association of Northern Virginia. He Died on November 15, 1897.

EDGAR S. BAMBERGER Page 14 By Lee Leopold

Edgar S. Bamberger, born in Baltimore, was associated with his Uncle Louis in the Family business, L. Bamberger & Co. He was educated at John Hopkins. He was friendly with his cousin (and, I believe) Albert Hutzler and Gretchen, his wife. They socialized. I met them at my grandfather's home.

The next generation, Albert's daughter (Caroline Bernstein) and Edgar's daughters were friends - especially Jane. The 3rd generation of Hutzlers and Bambergers also have a friendship. Mildred (Bunny) Levine and Frank Bernstein live near each other in Baltimore and are friends. I have met Frank in Baltimore. I do not know the other Hutzlers. Our connection with the Hutzlers goes back to earlier generations. Only once did I see Pomona. Gretchen was then 88 in 1976 and we visited her.

JANET ALMA HANFT FAMILY. Page 67 By S. Glenn Krochmal

Janet Alma Hanft was raised in Raleigh, NC. Her father, Solomon, owned a chain of gasoline stations. When his wife Rosalie Heller died, he married Rosalie's nurse. He was 77 at his second marriage. Janet Hanft married Arnold Krochmal while he was an undergraduate at N.C. State. Janet worked for Conn. General Life Insurance Co. for most of her adult life and the company transferred her to Conn. where she met and married Anthony Sapientza. She was separated from him when he died.

Stephen "Glenn" Krochman dropped out of High School at 17 and joined the navy. He spent 8 years in the navy where he met Kathleen Connolley in Ireland while serving aboard Spy Ship U.S.N.S. Dutton. After leaving the Navy in 1968 he had two electronics jobs in Washington, DC and then began an insurance career in Norfolk, VA in 1970. He transferred to Walnut Creek in 1975 and married his office manager in 1987.

Stephen G. Krochmal, Jr. (Steve) graduated from Drake University with a BS and BA majoring in insurance. Currently he is a 2nd Lieutenant in U.S. Army in the Adjutant General Corp.

Rosalie Ann Krochmal (LeeLee) is working on her 5 year plan to finish her degree at U.C. San Diego in Mammalian Physiology with a minor in Russian.

David Krochmal received a court settlement for personal injury when 18 years old and hasn't done much since. He is still searching for himself.

Mark Krochmal is presently a life guard and is still searching for himself.

PAULA KOHN & JACOB MANN FAMILY. Page 62 By Joan Ellen Weisenbeck (Knowlton)

After many years of struggling to get visas to escape Nazi Germany, my mother - then Lily Mann, had to leave Germany without her parents - Paula and Jacob Mann. She was able to leave through the auspices of a "Household Help" program, in which English families provided room, board and a safe haven to German Jewish teenagers in exchange for housework. They were allowed to earn no money. She left Germany on June 12, 1939 for Hatfield, England. Her cousin, Trude New, had left on a similar journey to Belfast, Ireland several months before.

While in England, she and others were trying feverishly to enable the rest of her family to escape. Finally, distant relatives of her father - the Manelebaums of Des Moines, Iowa, were discovered, and they deposited money in the Bank of England for my grandparents to live on. They also were not allowed to earn money while in England. My grandparents finally got their exit visas, but waited with my great-grandmother - Lina Kohn - for her visa to arrive. This was not to be. On August 27, 1939, my mother's employer, who was an editor of the London Times, heard rumors that England would soon declare war on Germany. He counseled my mother to call her parents and tell them to get out of Germany fast. They and my mother's aunt, Rosa Neu, were on the last boat that left Germany for England before war was declared. They arrived in London with one small suitcase apiece. Rosa went to join Trude in Ireland. Unfortunately, Lina Kahn had to be left behind - a fact which hurt my mother, grandmother, and the rest of the family deeply, as they all loved her very much. She died a natural death in 1941, but never saw her children and grandchildren again.

My mother was able to emigrate to the United States some time later. She left England on March 19, 1940, arriving in New York, and first seeing the Statue of Liberty on March 25, 1940 after a stormy voyage through mined waters. Her first job was as a seamstress dressmaker for which she was paid $9 for a six day week. By the time her parents arrived in August of 1940, she had worked her way up to $18 a week, and later to $22. My grandfather, who had sold textiles in Germany, began again by selling nurses uniforms in doctor's offices, and anything else he could get a job selling. He ended up as a partner in his own business with an old acquaintance who had been a printer. They sold office and personal stationery, announcements, invitations, and the like. My mother married in July of 1943 and we all moved to Forest Hills, New York, where my mother still lives. She re-married in June 1957. My brother, Jack, was born on their first anniversary, which was also my grandmother, Paula Mann's birthday. My grandmother lived with us until her death in 1963. She was an enormous and wonderful part of my life.

I am now married and have two children of my own, Peter and Meredith. They delight in hearing the 'old stories' of which I am very glad. I am a physician's assistant, working part-time with my husband who is a family Practitioner. We live in a fairly rural area.

I am very glad to be able to pass on some of our history for our relatives and our children - for our past is truly a big part of our future.

WILLARD DALLMAN ROSS. Page 72 - Information supplied by himself

Willard Dallman Ross, better known by his friends as "Bill" says that he is not a good source for family history of the older generations but was born in 1925, is single, and lives in Marin County (north of San Francisco over the Golden Gate Bridge).

Has a B.A. from U.C. Berkeley in comparative literature (English/German), and also attended Ruprecht-Karlis Universit at (the University of) Heidelberg (W. Germany) and San Francisco State University. He says he is just starting out in his freelance writing/consulting business, having worked in the past as a salesman, finance manager, marketing agent, public relations director, etc. He still "moonlights" as a banquet waiter in some of the nicer hotels in the area -- it pays about $25 per hour and helps defray the mortgage on the 1 bedroom condo while he develops more clients and contacts (a slow process in the writer's world). "I have also been applying myself seriously (if haphazardly) to personal writing: fiction, and personal scholarship in the area of linguistics". "Personal interests and hobbies include travel (I mortocycled across Nepal in December), amateur theater, amateur musical performance (piano), bicycling (70 miles a week), motorcycling (19 years' experience in 11 countries and 39 states), and skiing".

ELAINE DALLMAN. Page 72 - Information supplied by herself

The daughter of Vernon S. Dallman and Etta Evangeline Hornstein. Was married to and divorced from Willard B. Ross. Children are Willard Dallman Ross (see previous history on Page H-35-36) and Laurel Alyce Neesan, who has a son, Brian David Neesan.

"I have been to many schools. My undergraduate work and one year of graduate work was at Stanford University where I had two majors: Child Psychology and Education. My M.A. is from San Francisco State University: A degree in Creative Writing. I received a double major Ph.D.: qualified for a Ph.D. in both Creative Writing and English Literature from the University of Southern Illinois. I studied under John Gardner. Presently I am the president of two publishing houses, one of them the non-profit Women-In-Literature, Inc. The second press is Medallion Guild. Published books: Woman Poet--The West, Woman Poet--The Midwest, Woman Poet--The East, Open Score: J. S. Bach The Well Tempered Clavier and Open Score: J. S. Bach The Well Tempered Clavier Book II. (Two books are forthcoming in 1989; one is Woman Poet--The South, and my own original book of poetry, A Parallel Cut of Air. My original book of poetry will be a fine letter press edition with fine binding. The designer for the book has won many of the most important awards in the United States for his work. My poetry has taken a different turn lately; it has become more narrative and more "user friendly." My images are strong, although previously there were many more images and more symbolism in the poems. Additionally, I buy and sell jewelry and handle my own investments.

"My daughter, LAUREL ALYCE NEESAN, graduated from the University of California at Santa Cruz. She has been active in art, having created many original batiks, pieces of jewelry, designs for stationery and small books, and some nice photography. To earn her living, she works as a legal secretary with an emphasis on word processing. Her son, Brian David Neesan, specializes in knowing about the world of toys. He is computer literate (although just seven years old), and he enjoys baseball, being in the Little League. Laurel and her son live in Walnut Creek, CA."

NOTES FOR INDEX

For all of you who have creative names, we respect the creativeness of your parents. If your name was creative and we altered it, please let Charles know.

Nicknames are included in quotation marks only when used regularly in place of given names. When a middle name or maiden name is the working name, it is underlined. Predictable nicknames, i. e. Bill for William, are not included. The given surname of adopted children is given in brackets, as are some of the original names of persons who have formally changed names. Since adoption can be a sensitive matter, I only included adoptions when the parents approved.

Professional women tend to retain their maiden names. This practice complicates our work. The same can be said for hyphenation of the two surnames.

Just what constitutes a marriage is not as definite as it was when I was a boy. We know of several enduring relationships qualifying as common-law marriages, but have not listed them. If there is a child, we assume the parents are married.

Not all the persons in the index were in the book when it was published in July 1989. Charles has continuously updated this genealogy. The charts listed under my initials in the index have not been distributed. There are about 2900 names in the index, representing perhaps 2000+ persons.
